Convoy of 'cycles for cancer

Ride For Dad fundraiser to fight prostate cancer a growing success story

BY JOHNNIE BACHUSKY
 Review Staff

A small but formidable army of chrome and leather, often braving sordid wet weather conditions, met last Saturday afternoon at the Olds Walmart.

These young and old benevolent soldiers, who numbered almost 150, began their day six hours earlier in three groups. They started from Olds, Red Deer and High River. Along their journey, the riders passed through 26 rural Alberta communities to spread a message of hope. They rode up to 350 kilometres before merging in Olds.

Following a short break it was time to rev the engines once more. With a police escort, the riders made the final leg of their daylong trip together. They rolled through Olds and then down Highway 2A towards Didsbury. Once there, the riders celebrated. They had accomplished something truly special. Garry Janz, founder of the remarkable annual Ride For Dad event that has grown to be a national institution, was on hand to congratulate local officials and riders.

Thousands and thousands of dollars was raised for prostate cancer awareness and research. Olds businessman Dean Harper, chair of the Rural Alberta chapter, said Monday (June 25) more than $90,000 in donations had been confirmed with much more to come. Last year, the local chapter raised more than $160,000.

At the closing ceremonies, a $101,000 cheque – proceeds from last year's rural ride – was given by the rural chapter to Dr. John Lewis, appointed last year as the Frank and Carla Sojonyk Chair in Prostate Cancer Research at the University of Alberta's Faculty of Medicine and Dentistry. As well, the Didsbury closing ceremonies

"The winners are the men of Canada."

DEAN HARPER

featured a Prostate Cancer Centre "Man Van" offering free blood tests for men. The day of success ended with prizes for poker winners, as well as for best bike, oldest rider, highest pledge, and most unique bike. It was all capped off with a pig roast, entertainment and a glorious sense of community and accomplishment.

"There is a lot of it (prostate cancer) out there," said Mary Howden, treasurer of the Rural Alberta Ride For Dad. "One out of seven men will be touched by it."

Over the past four years the annual Rural Alberta TELUS Motorcycle Ride For Dad has not only grown in size but has expanded its reach to raise awareness.

"The winners are the men of Canada," said Harper. "This is to make people become more aware. It used to be taboo like breast cancer but it has become more and more known in the mainstream and more people have become more knowledgeable about it. With all the known cancers out there prostate cancer is one of the most treatable forms with early detection."

Harper said organizers did a more aggressive public relations campaign for the 2012 event. He said it will set up the rural chapter to be more in the public eye for future fundraising rides.

Ride For Dad events take place in 30 major municipalities across Canada, representing every province.

Since the first ride in 2000, more than 600,000 Canadians have made a donation or pledged a rider that has on the national level totalled in excess of $9 million dollars. The Ride For Dad has grown to include the participation of more than 250,000 men, women and children. The events now also see the usage of snowmobiles and watercraft.

This is the fourth year of rural Alberta's own Ride For Dad chapter. Citizens and businesses in Central Alberta have rallied in a big way to support the annual ride. At Didsbury's AG Foods, customers have donated $2,000. As well, the Didsbury-based Mountainview Colts Junior B hockey team raised almost $20,000 from a charity game that was held last February.

"All the money we collect stays in Alberta, some of it for awareness, some of it for research," said Howden. "We are getting more women involved. It seems it is the women who are talking to men. And they listen. We encourage all men to get out there and get that test."

Town's heritage plan set to make huge leap

Local designated heritage property owners may soon be able to access provincial grant funding

BY JOHNNIE
BACHUSKY
Review Staff

Having completed its heritage survey and inventory, the town is set to make its long-awaited move forward with the development of the Heritage Management Plan and the Alberta Main Street Plan.

If council formally approves the initiative on June 26, the town will have made a momentous step towards establishing a firm framework to protect its historical resources, as well as enhancing and promoting them while being an accredited Alberta Main Street Community.

"Heritage is important. If we don't do that right now and we stop there, then what we have done to date in figuring out what we have for heritage, building and inventories, stops right there," said Mayor Brian Wittal.

At the Committee of the Whole Meeting on June 12, council was told by Lesley Bannister, community planning officer, that the town, having completed both its heritage survey and inventory – a process that began in 2009, is ready to take the next step in managing its historic resources.

She said the next move is a two-pronged approach that first involves the development of the Heritage Management Plan (HMP) through Heritage Collaborative Inc. to determine the process and framework for designating municipal historic resources, an essential requirement to access provincial grant funding from the Municipal Heritage Partnership Program (MHPP).

Secondly, the town now wants to come on board the provincial Alberta Main Street Plan (AMSP) to focus on downtown revitalization. The AMSP help to get that fixed."

LESLEY BANNISTER
Community Planning Officer

"Those can be for anything that fits within the four pillars of the plan, which are marketing, design, organization and economic development," said Bannister.

"Anything that fits into those is determined by the stakeholders of whatever committee or body that takes care of this downtown core.

"It is the best of both worlds, especially for those downtown properties in the (historical) inventory. They will be ready to move forward," said Bannister. "If they have a bad roof they can get help to get that fixed. If they want to have an event in town they might be able to get grant funding for that. So it is a win-win."

However, there is a cost to implement both heritage strategies, which is matched by the MHPP. Council members were told on June 12 that if both plans were pursued separately the total cost to the town would be $35,000. If done together the cost would be $25,000 – saving the town $10,000.

As well, by doing both plans together the town will have two integrated plans with "clearly identified outcomes" for residents and defined roles and responsibilities for council, property owners, the town's Heritage Advisory Committee and administration, said a report to council members on June 12.

"I think it is a prudent move to spend those dollars to get us to that next level in this provincial funding program," said Wittal. "It would also mean, whether through the economic development committee that we are going to start up through the chamber, there is potential to get up to $40,000 a year for the community for doing enhancement, economic development and everything else."

"So that $25,000 investment could turn into $90,000 worth of funds coming back to businesses or through our economic development committee to enhance our heritage and our businesses in the downtown."

Opinion

Letters to the editor Didsbury a sinking ship?

We have recently managed to create the image of Didsbury being a sinking ship.

Articles in the Review, talk on the street and in coffee shops and the display of petitioners on the main drag indicate a clear sign of anxiety as it pertains to the viability of this great town.

In my view Didsbury is doing OK. Not great but OK.

I have lived in Didsbury 54 years as a businessman, two-term councillor in the '70s and 2000 and now as a senior. We have had our ups and downs many times over.

I have seen the population grow from 1,800 in 1958 to 4,957 in 2012. The amenities offered in small-town Didsbury are next to none. Sure, the business sector has been adversely affected as of late by the influx of big-box stores in the region.

Despite that setback, the town is teaming with organizations that are full of life and actively promote programs and opportunities that range from preschool to seniors and for all ages in between. All of that activity is driven by volunteers.

We also have good medical staff and facilities. So we are in a down cycle. What we need now is to unite, quit the bickering, and collect all of our energy to promote our town as a growth centre.

Clean the streets, spruce up the lots and put on our best dress. Business people need to serve their customers with an extra effort of help and friendliness to make the customer feel happy to come back.

Maybe you need to stock items that would save a trip to Walmart or Canadian Tire. Let the customer know what you have to offer, train your staff to be extra efficient and forthcoming and look at store opening times that are better suited for your customer.

Let's ask our newspaper to promote Didsbury with the many positive things that are happening or at the very least balance the reporting.

Our council is not all bad. Council had some tough decisions to make and made them maybe against the advice from knowledgeable people.

Only time will tell whether the decision to develop land with borrowed public funds at low interest was the right thing to do. But now is not the time to second guess.

The time is to unite and promote Didsbury for what it is and we will all come out on top. United we will not sink.

Pandora's Box surprises

Did the Town of Didsbury's fire chief (or designate) really need a new vehicle when the "old" one, in my opinion, seemed in perfectly good shape? Furthermore did our bylaw enforcement officer need new wheels as well?

I don't suppose for one minute that we taxpayers will see either of these latest "investments" travel along 23rd Street, south of 15th Avenue until surface improvements, to which the Town of Didsbury has committed, have been completed. I can't help but wonder what further six-figure surprises are contained in Pandora's Box!

Just the numbers

"Council's Information Update" in the June 12 edition of the Didsbury Review is welcome and appreciated.

However, I would like to correct a numerical error. I am looking at the Town of Didsbury's Financial Statements and also the archived provincial Municipal Financial Information System Schedule A, Financial Position-Reserves. The town had $539,110 in reserves in 2004, not $24,000!

"Total Reserve Fund Balances" were $182,184 in 2002; $180,273 in 2003; $539,110 in 2004; $915,032 in 2005; $1,275,652 in 2006; $1,239,397 in 2007 and $1,020,111 in 2008.

I would like to give credit to our 2001 to 2007 councils and staff for their concerted and successful efforts to first reduce the debt of the Town of Didsbury as much as possible, and secondly to build our reserves to over a million dollars by 2006. We paid off every higher interest debt (up to 12.5 per cent!) that was open to payout where the penalties did not outweigh the benefit.

In dollars, the debt was reduced from $4.904 million in 2000 to a low of $3.488 million in 2004. Our debt servicing costs went from 83.82 per cent of the legislated limit in 2001 to just 39.24 per cent in 2005, rising to 44.76 per cent of the debt service limit in 2006 because of financing some of the extensive roadwork on Main (20th) Street, part of our 30-year infrastructure plan. Didsbury's percentage of debt limit used went from 81.39 per cent in 2000 down to 39.25 per cent in 2005, rising to 45.31 per cent in 2006 for the same reason.

Please feel free to check the accuracy of the above information on the provincial database at http://www.municipalfairs.gov.ab.ca/municipal_financial_statistical_data.cfm

Mandatory ATV helmet use makes sense

DAN SINGLETON

While nobody likes to see the government imposing unnecessary rules or regulations on their everyday lives, renewed calls for mandatory off-road motorized vehicle helmet use makes nothing but good sense.

The Alberta Centre for Injury Control and Research says there have been more than 100 ATV-related deaths in the province over the past decade, with most of the fatalities involving traumatic head injuries. Of those men, women and children who have died of head injuries in ATV accidents, more than 75 per cent were not wearing helmets.

Although the Klein, Stelmach and now Redford Conservative governments have so far declined to move forward with mandatory ATV helmet rules for Alberta, the Liberal opposition call for action last week will hopefully prompt some action.

"As a medical doctor, I have absolutely no doubt that legislating helmet use for ATV riders would save lives and reduce health-care costs, and it's unconscionable for the government to not see this as being worthy of regulation," said Official Opposition leader Dr. David Swann, who recently lost a nephew in an ATV accident.

"Mandating helmet use would reduce suffering, disability and death among ATV riders and make Alberta law consistent with nearly every other Canadian jurisdiction."

Any suggestion that an ATV helmet law would be unenforceable in the province misses the point: such a law would be aimed squarely at protecting the health and welfare of the ATV users themselves and would therefore need little, if any, enforcement in any event.

"While people always have a choice when it comes to obeying such laws, they need to ask themselves beforehand if breaking the law is worth getting fined for or possibly losing their life or endangering the life of another - that's often where the real benefit lies," he said.

Other provinces have had mandatory ATV helmet use rules in place and it certainly hasn't deterred people from enjoying the motorized vehicles. It hasn't happened in other jurisdictions and it wouldn't happen here.

With ATV use continuing to be very popular across Alberta, and in particular in the weekend recreational areas such as the West Country, the time is long overdue for the provincial government to make ATV helmet use mandatory for all riders and passengers.

Although it may prove hard to determine whether mandatory helmet use will actually lead to fewer ATV crash deaths - riders who wear helmets and crash aren't likely to report their mishaps are they? - it's a public safety move that needs to be made without delay.

Nobody likes government interference, but in some cases, like this one, it makes nothing but good sense.

Get ready for Mountain View Rocks

Music festival on July 14 is hoping to attract up to 2,000 at Memorial Park

BY JOHNNIE
BACHUSKY
Review Staff

The organizing drive for the inaugural Mountain View Rocks festival on July 14 is on target.

Organizing committee officials are hoping a crowd of up to 2,000 people will ultimately cram Didsbury's Memorial Park to hear the tunes of Nick Gilder and Sweeney Todd.

"For the first year we are on schedule. We would have liked to have been ahead of schedule," said Kathleen Windsor, chair of the Mountain View Arts Society which is overseeing the event. "We are planning for a crowd of 1,500 but we are sure we have room for 2,000."

The event is being held following last year's successful Alberta Arts Days which featured a mini concert. It will also feature a beer garden, food vendors, an artisan and commercial market as well as face painting and balloon artists.

Deborah Patten, who is chairing the event, said she is hoping to see the festival become a permanent annual event, noting it is the society's mission to bring more art to the community.

"We are excited to showcase up-and-coming bands," said Patten. "It is obviously a learning curve but we fully expect it will be a success."

Windsor said the event is being held on a $60,000 budget, which the organizing committee is raising through $30 ticket sales and fundraising. She said the town has provided the venue free of charge and is supplying other amenities.

"The town has been 100 per cent behind this event," she said. "It is so important we promote these young people and independent artists. We need the party."

She said a full slate of bands has been booked. It is expected that nine bands will perform through the event. One of the bands booked is Airdrie's Storm. Other confirmed groups include pop rockers Seventh Rain, Promise Revoked and Broken Heroes.

However, it is considered a coup for organizers to have landed Nick Gilder and Sweeney Todd, musical acts that have excited rock fans since the 1970s, winning Juno Awards along the way.

Windsor added that while there are still plenty of tickets remaining, she is urging music enthusiasts to get them early.

Copper wire theft problematic for police

Copper wire theft remains an ongoing problem for oil field companies and law enforcement agencies in the rural regions of Central Alberta. Didsbury RCMP report that sometime between the evening of June 16 and early morning hours of June 17 a thief or thieves cut the locks of a gate to a secluded rural battery site for an oil and gas operation that was located in the Elkton area.

The culprit or culprits then stole 400 ft. of copper wire grounding cables.

"This is related to the extensive copper wire thefts experienced in Central Alberta," said Didsbury RCMP Cpl. Warren Wright. "These copper wire thefts are ongoing. It happens everywhere. It has been going on for years."

Wright emphasized that the problem is not just local but widespread regionally and provincially.

He said thieves will steal the copper wire and melt it down and have it converted to cash.

"It is a crime of opportunity," said Wright. "And it is dangerous. You could be tampering with unsafe equipment and that would be compromising the safety of the public."

If anyone has information on the copper wire theft he or she is asked to contact Didsbury RCMP at 403-335-3382.

Police probing unrelated thefts

Didsbury RCMP is seeking the public's assistance in connection to a pair of unrelated recent thefts.

At about noon hour on June 11 a local gas station at 17 Street and 20 Avenue was victimized by a gas and dash caper.

Didsbury Cpl. Warren Wright said the operator of a black Ford Harley-Davidson pickup truck filled up the vehicle with $96.23 worth of gas at the pumps. The driver then left the gas station without paying.

Wright is asking any citizen who may have witnessed this theft or who noted the licence plate number of the pickup truck to contact the local RCMP office at 403-335-3382.

Mounties are also probing the theft of a black Diamondback mountain bike at a Didsbury residence at 15 Avenue and 14 Street. Wright said the theft occurred sometime between 9 p.m. on June 10 to 6 a.m. on June 11.

Anyone with information on this theft is asked to call local RCMP at 403-335-3382.

Police nab drinking youths

A minor and an adult were busted for illegally drinking alcohol on town property.

Didsbury police said a group of youths were caught drinking beer near the intersection of 26 Avenue and 16 Street on June 15. RCMP Cpl. Warren Wright said the public property was a baseball diamond.

Police charged one 18-year-old male adult and one 17-year-old youth with provincial alcohol related offences.

Bikes returned to RCMP

Two lost or stolen bikes have been returned to the Didsbury RCMP office.

One bike is a silver Dina Suspect stunt bike for youths while the other is an unidentified model yellow mountain bike. The RCMP is inviting the owners of the bikes to call the police office at 403-335-3382 to verify the ownership and to claim their rightful property.

Your Health. Our Promise.

Opening doors to publicly funded health care in your community.

Fellow Albertans:

You want better access to publicly funded health care for you and your family. So do I.

My promise, and that of my government, is that you and all Albertans will have a home in the health care system where people know you and your health needs, can help you manage your health, and can help you get more specialized care if it's needed.

Every home has a front door. Think of primary health care as the front door to the publicly funded health system. That door needs to provide alternatives to the emergency room. It needs to open onto a whole health care team, so you get the attention you need from the most appropriate professional. That could be a doctor, but it also could be a nurse or nurse practitioner, a therapist, a dietitian, or a pharmacist.

This is happening now in primary care networks in some communities. It is happening in Family Care Clinics in Calgary, Edmonton and Slave Lake. We want to see it happen in more communities right across the province.

To make it happen, we need to change the health care conversation. We need to focus on your needs, instead of on what the health system needs. We need to make health care fit you, instead of fitting you into the health system. My MLAs will be bringing that focus into their constituencies this summer as they meet and talk with health care providers and with you and your family in your community.

All of government is acting on our promise of a home in health care for all Albertans.

We are working to open more primary care doors. Your health needs are the key.

Your health, and our promise. That's a powerful combination for accessible health care.

Together, we can make it happen.

Sincerely,

Alison Redford, Premier

In loving memory of Dr. Virgil Stauffer who passed away June 25, 2005

Our thoughts are always with you,
Your place no one can fill,
In the life we dearly loved,
In death we love you still.
We know you walk beside us,
And when our life is through,
We pray that God will take our hands,
And lead us straight to you.

Lovingly remembered by
Wife Irene, Myrna-Lee, Wes, Michael & Families

In loving memory of ALEX HUNTER who passed away June 26th, 2006

There will always be this heartache, and often the silent tears.
We shall cherish those precious memories of the days when you were here.
We hold you close within our hearts;
and there you will remain,
Please walk with us throughout our lives
until we meet again.
Remembering you is easy,
we do it every day,
But missing you is a heartache that never goes away.

Always remembered and sadly missed
by your loving wife, Cathie.

Alex Hunter (Dad)

If Roses grow in Heaven,
Lord please pick a bunch for me
Place them in my Father's arms
And tell him they're from me
Tell him I love him and miss him
And when he turns to smile
Place a kiss upon his cheek
And hold him for awhile
Because remembering is easy,
I do it every day
But there's an ache within my heart
Because I am missing him today...
Love,
Lorraine, Grant & Family
